Discovered music collection of Friedrich Wilhelm Jüncke (1842–1897) as the beginning of research into the reconstruction of the old musical inventory

Abstract: This article attempts to determine the function of the discovered small collection of 19 pieces of music, owned by Friedrich Wilhelm Jüncke (1842–1897) stored in the Library of the Stanisław Moniuszko Academy of Music in Gdańsk. In the face of limited knowledge about the life of this merchant from Gdańsk, and then from Sopot, the discovery that, apart from numismatic items and so-called Gdańsk door, he also collected musical items was a big surprise for the employees of the Art Inkubator, an institution that, since 2019, has been taking care of, e.g. Jüncke's villa and cherishes the memory of the former owner of the building. The musical and bibliological characteristics of the music prints showed that Jüncke gathered them for collecting rather than for utilitarian purposes. The provenance entries found in two prints prove that Jüncke was not their first owner. In addition, the entries found in the next five prints may prove that after Jüncke's death some items were in the possession of the Gdańsk NSDAP, and after the war they ended up in the aMuz Library. Undoubtedly, finding this small book collection contributes to supplementing the information about Jüncke and – indirectly – to expanding knowledge about the musical culture of Gdańsk in the period 1939–1945.

Introduction

Searching at the beginning of 2023 the section with the oldest and most valuable music scores stored in the Library of the Stanisław Moniuszko Academy of Music in Gdańsk (hereafter: aMuz Library), I became interested in an old signature written in Schwabach left in several dozen copies. It consists of an uppercase letter A, a lowercase letter (so far found: a, e, g, k, m) and the following number in the inventory. The lowercase letters indicate the type of music or cast and, at the same time, the section (see Figure 1):

- a – music on piano solo,
- e – (only one item: duet on 2 flutes, 2 violins or 2 recorders)<sup>1</sup>,
- g – music on solo instrument with piano accompaniment,
- k – early music,
- m – chamber music on various ensembles, larger than a duet.

with music on piano and the register number.

<sup>2</sup> F. Liszt, Fantaisie sur des motifs favoris de l'opéra Somnambula de Bellini, composée pour le Piano par F. Liszt. Seconde édition nouvelle et corrigée, Hambourg-Leipsic : propriété des Editeurs Schuberth & Comp., 1842 (Hamb. : Stich u. Druck v. J. Schulze). Reg. no.: N 3218, call no.: CZ 78(0.068) Liszt F – Somna/fanta.

There is uncertainty as to the manner of number continuity, whether the numbering is applied within a particular department or continuously, as the inventory number of the next copy in the entire stock.

As the construction of these signatures indicates an intentional ordering of the works by department and performance cast, it is my intention to reconstruct this catalogue. So far I have not been able to determine which institution gave the A-signatures. Among the stamps of the institutions, the Gaumusikschule Danzig-Westpreußen, which has the most representation, should be mentioned first and foremost. Also appearing are the Landeskulturmuseum der Freien Stadt Danzig<sup>3</sup>, and the Cölner Tonkunstler-Verein<sup>4</sup>. However, it is not known whether the signature was already given during the Reichsgau Danzig-Westpreußen period or earlier. In all the scores containing this signature, another one can be found, written in pencil, consisting of the annual date and the subsequent inventory number (see Figure 2). In my opinion, these notes were subjected to extensive recording, as evidenced by the high inventory number, e.g. 11528. The entries date from 1942 or 1943. Research on them is still in progress.

Alongside the stamps of the aforementioned institutions, there are other various provenance entries: from handwritten signatures and ownership stamps to various notes and the stamps of Danzig and German bookshops. From the ownership marks, I have read the signatures and stamps of Friedrich Wilhelm Jüncke, who is the subject of this article, as well as, in greater numbers, Paul Friedrich Damme (1864–1925)<sup>6</sup>, and also handwritten signatures: Siewert –

Benjamin Gotthold Siewert (1740–1811)<sup>7</sup> and Johanna Schmidt<sup>8</sup>, as well as Ida Dolle and W. Brauer (unidentified persons), while among the booksellers the stamps: C.F. Schmidt Musikalienhandlung u. Verlag; Heilbronn a. N.; Constantin Ziemssen and Musikalien – u. Pianoforthehandlung; Muskalien – u. Bucher-Leihhandtalt Danzig. Chronologically, last are the stamps of the Library of the State School of Music [Biblioteka Państwowej Szkoły Muzycznej, hereafter: PSM] and the State Higher School of Music [ Państwowa Wyższa Szkoła Muzyczna, PWSM] in Sopot<sup>9</sup>.

I began my provenance research of the found collection with the entries of F.W. Jüncke. After studying his biography and visiting his villa at 3 Goyki Street in Sopot, it turned out that there was no information to date that Jüncke collected music, so my discovery is a contribution to complement the very scarce knowledge of the former owner.

In this article, I have characterised Jüncke's found book collection from a bibliographical and musical point of view, and I have drawn up a catalogue in alphabetical order according to the composers' names, considering provenance records, concordances, and any relevant notes allowing the dating of the prints to be established. I have also attempted to establish the function that these prints may have had in Jüncke's collection, whether they had a utilitarian function or were merely of collector value. This primarily involved establishing the path of the copies before they reached Jüncke and what happened to them after his death.

The Tower Villa in Sopot

At 1–3 Jakub Goyki Street in Sopot there is a historic villa and park complex designed by Karl Hofacker (life dates unknown), built between 1877 and 1903 by Johann Heinrich Prochnow (1847–1927) and financed by Friedrich Wilhelm Jüncke (1842–1897)<sup>10</sup>.

8 This is most likely Johanna Schmidt (née Wolff, 1805–1864?), a singer, wife of the violinist Simon Georg Schmidt (1801–1861), who travelled with him throughout Europe for concert and teaching purposes, see Schmidt, George, [in:] Encyclopädie der gesammten musikalischen Wissenschaften oder Universal-Lexicon der Tonkunst. Schilling, Stuttgart 1838, pp. 216–217, [online] <https://books.google.de/books?id=S7kZAAAAYAAJ&pg=PA217#v=onepage&q&f=false> [accessed 27.06.2023]; perhaps she not only sang but also accompanied her husband, hence her signature in the notes.

9 In 1946 the Gdańsk Institute of Music [Gdański Instytut Muzyczny] was divided into a lower and a higher school. On the basis of the higher school, the State Higher School of Music in Sopot was established [PWSM], comprising three schools: the lower school under Zofia Heinrich, the secondary school under Stefan Tarkowski, and the higher school under S. Śledziński, see A. Michalska, Prekursorzy gdańskiej pedagogiki wokalnej XX wieku, “Musica Vocale” 2012, [Vol.] 1, p. 49.

F.W. Jüncke, son of Friedrich Anton Johann Jüncke (1809–1860)<sup>11</sup>, was a councillor of Danzig between 1891 and 1897, and from 1893 also headmaster of the Corpus Christi church and Corpus Christi hospital in Danzig. Together with his brothers Albert Theodor Heinrich (1835–1898)<sup>12</sup> and Louis Eduard (1838–1900)<sup>13</sup>, he ran the wine trade company F.A.J. Jüncke, taken over from his father. At first he lived in Danzig: in 1875 at 13 Langgasse Street (today Długa Street), in 1892 at 11 Jopengasse Street (today Piwna Street), then in Sopot, in a newly built villa at Schefflerstrasse 1/3<sup>14</sup> (today Goyki 3 Street). Unfortunately, he died during his treatment in Berlin.

Little more is known about Jüncke's life. In his house in Danzig he received guests, including musicians<sup>15</sup>. He was a collector and art lover<sup>16</sup>; in the rooms of his villa in Sopot the original doors, the so-called Danzig doors, have been preserved – purchased as artefacts, he also collected numismatics, and he prepared cellars for storing wine in the villa. After his death, his wife Amanda Hermine Agnes née Claassen (Claassen, 1845–1928) rented the villa to tenants<sup>17</sup>, and then bequeathed it to her grandson Hans Acker (1902–1940)<sup>18</sup>, who moved in with his wife Elsa Johanna Amanda née Bertling (1900–?). Acker committed suicide in 1940, and his widow sold the villa to the Danzig NSDAP (Gauschutzamt der NSDAP) in 1942, nevertheless retaining the right to continue living there.

After the war, a nursery was in operation from 1945 to 1957, then the building was renovated and eight council flats were set aside, where the tenants lived until 2013<sup>19</sup>. Between 2015 and 2018, the villa hosted various cultural events and after extensive renovation, the Tower House and the surrounding Grodowy Park took over in 2019 by Art Incubator, an institution dedicated to supporting artists, conducting cultural research, and looking after the entire residence. A tower refurbishment has been carried out and the whole building has been revitalized, making it largely open to the public<sup>20</sup>.

The book collection characteristics

In view of the very scant biographical information on Jüncke and his family, the news that he collected music prints came as a great surprise to the Art Incubator staff. The authenticity of the autograph was confirmed by comparing it with Jüncke's signature on the villa construction project (see Figure 3 A–E).

The number of prints in question with Jüncke's ownership marks is small – 19 titles (19 volumes, including one block consisting of the main document and one adligat) have so far been found in the aMuz Library. A relevant search in the Gdańsk Library of the Polish Academy of Sciences did not return any results. Thus, there is currently no information on whether any music scores from this collection are still stored.

The prints are in good condition. Each has a wrapper. Several types of covers should be distinguished:

1. Plain, cardboard, blue folders, with a specified space for inscribing the title, certainly dating from before or after Jüncke's time, as they bear his stamp or autograph; see Figure 5).

All the notes are first editions. Only one work, Athalie by Johann Abraham Peter Schulz (1747–1800)<sup>24</sup>, was published in the 18th century and will be discussed more extensively in the following. The remaining works were published in the nineteenth century:

- In Germany: Breitkopf & Härtel (Leipzig) – four titles; N. Simrock (Bonn) and Schuberth & Co. (Hamburg-Leipzig-New York) – two titles each; the other publishers are represented by single titles: A. Kühnel (Leipzig); Bote & Bock (Berlin-Poznań); C.F. Meser (Berlin-Dresden) – one title in two volumes; C.F.W. Siegel (Leipzig); Fr. Kistner (Leipzig); M. Bahn Verlag (Berlin); B. Schott (Mainz); fils B. Schott (Berlin) and A. Schott (Antwerp) and Verlag von Ad. Mt. Schlesinger (Berlin),
- In Austria: in the Wiener company S. A. Steiner und Comp. – one title<sup>25</sup>.

In terms of the nationality of the composers, the most represented are Germans – eight composers living in the 18th, late 18th/early 19th, and 19th centuries; followed by Italians – two composers, from the 18th/19th and 19th centuries; one Frenchman – 18th/19th century; one Czech – 18th/19th century; and one Hungarian – 19th century, a composer of four titles.

Among the types of work, piano reductions of stage works dominate – ten titles and piano works – six titles. The remaining works represent chamber music, two titles; the collection also includes one piano reduction of a mass<sup>26</sup>.

The oldest and most valuable print in the book collection is the piano reduction of J.A.P. Schulz's opera Athalie, published in 1786 in Kiel by Carl Friedrich Cramer (1752–1807)<sup>27</sup>. The print is unique in several respects. In the Jüncke collection, it is the only music score still published in the 18th century and printed on handmade paper using the movable type technique by Benjamin 27 German linguist, publisher, music critic and composer. Beginning in 1782, he edited a series of vocal scores (piano reductions) and collections of songs and keyboard pieces, especially by composers such as Carl Philipp Emanuel Bach (1714–1788) and C.W. Gluck. He was also editor of the journal “Magazin der Musik” where, in addition to compilations of new publications by genre, concert criticism, and essays in music theory, he included descriptions of concert programmes and performers in various European cities, as well as the composition of several contemporary orchestras from Bonn, Kassel and Dresden, see S. Gottlob Hoffmann (1748–1818)<sup>28</sup>. The work is accompanied by a six-page editorial commentary and a synopsis and libretto of the opera.

The work is bound in a blue cover, which bears the autograph ‘FW Jüncke’, while the title page bears the handwritten signature “Siewert”<sup>29</sup>. As mentioned above, this is about Benjamin Gotthold Siewert, in 1767 a singer at St John’s Church and from 1782 Kapellmeister at the Church of the Blessed Virgin Mary in Danzig<sup>30</sup>. It is known that J.A.P. Schulz was in Poland in the 1770s and in Danzig precisely in 1771<sup>31</sup>. He may have met Siewert at that time and then dedicated the work or donated a print to him. It is not known from where Jüncke obtained this copy. Since the records of the receipt of music scores up to inventory number N 5865 have disappeared, it is also not known by what route this copy came to the aMuz Library.

The remaining prints in the collection are made using the engraving method. The oldest of this group were published up to the 1830s while the composers were still alive:

- F. Lauska, Sonate pour le pianoforte composée et dédiée à Mr. Heim Conseiller privé : Oe 20, par Fr. Lauska, Leipzig : chez A. Kühnel, [between 1806 and 1813],
- C.W. Gluck, Alceste : eine große ernsthafte Oper in 3 Acten. Musik von Ch. Ritter von Gluck ; nach der italienischen und französischen Partitur für Piano Forte bearbeitet von C. D. Stegmann, Bonn : bei N. Simrock, [1815],

The biographies of F.W. Jüncke makes no mention of his interest in music, let alone that he collected music documents in a systematic way, and it is difficult to establish the function that musical prints played in his life. Considering the types of pieces, as well as the performance texture (piano pieces, piano reductions of operas and masses, a chamber piece with preserved instrumental voices), it can be inferred that Jüncke bought or received music scores for concert purposes. On the other hand, the excellent state of preservation and the absence of notes by nineteenth-century performers (with the exception of the volume of G. Donizetti's L'Elisire d'amore, discussed below) indicates that Jüncke may only have kept the scores for collecting purposes or because he received them as a gift, for sentimental reasons. All the works are original compositions, requiring professional training and, in the case of the works of Ferenc Liszt (1811–1886), virtuosity. It is also not known when Jüncke became the owner of the music scores; most likely it happened while he was still living in Danzig. It is possible – based on a stamp left behind (see Figure 8 A-B) – that Jüncke bought Zwei Transcriptionen: «Confutatis et Lacrymosa» aus Mozart's Requiem für Piano<sup>33</sup> from Constatin Ziemssen, who had been running bookshops and music score rental shops in Danzig and Sopot since 1861<sup>34</sup>.

Presumably also Jüncke (or the person who gave him this copy) may have bought L. van Beethoven's Messe solennelle<sup>36</sup> from the bookshop of Carl Friedrich Schmidt (life dates unknown) in Heilbronn<sup>37</sup>.

There is an interesting entry in the work L'Elisire d'amore by G. Donizetti<sup>38</sup>. This is the only copy with rich performance notes made, judging by the different writing styles, by different people. The largest number of entries is those of the person who left a note on the title page (G. Kellmer? see Figure 9) and recorded performance dates for himself; he signed the text in notes on many pages and also noted the instrumental cast, so presumably this was the conductor<sup>39</sup>. The copy also shows numerous deletions, made rather contemporaneously (as evidenced by the deletions made in red crayon and pencil), when the music score was already in the possession of the PSM or PWSM Library in Sopot. L'Elisire d'amore was therefore a rather frequently performed work just from this copy, but it is not known how this copy came into Jüncke's hands.

The other prints are ‘clean’, with no signs of use or with single graphic remarks, belonging in my opinion to the post-war artist (so-called ticks, arrows, minor deletions of text).

It is not known what happened to the collection after Jüncke's death. Only five copies were found with the call number A discussed in the Introduction, as well as the year 1943 and the register number. Referring to the history of the tenement house at 3 Goyki Street, it is reasonable to assume that after the NSDAP took over the building, these notes, as they did not contain Polish music, were 39 Unfortunately, the sheet is truncated, the final digits of the annual date have not survived; the texts in the scores are written in the same handwriting and ink in German, so the work must have been performed several times in Potsdam. A query to the Universitätsbibliothek Potsdam, Stadt – und Landesbibliothek im Bildungsforum Potsdam and the Stiftung Preußische Schlösser und Gärten Berlin-Brandenburg has failed.

inventoried by the Germans. However, none of the prints in Jüncke's collection bear the stamp of any German cultural institution, so it is not clear where the A call numbers came from. The remaining volumes do not contain any twentieth-century markings, except for the stamps of the PSM and PWSM in Sopot. Protocols for the receipt of music scores up to register number N 5865 have disappeared, while a register of music scores established by the PWSM Library in Sopot in 1951, covering the range of register numbers from N 1 to N 6040, does not record where the PSM and PWSM acquired the copies. My guess is that someone simply found them in an abandoned NSDAP building on Goyki Street and brought them to the nearby Sopot Music School. An exception is the later copy N 35796<sup>41</sup> (given after the PWSM moved to Gdańsk at 3 Łagiewniki Street and changed its name to the Stanisław Moniuszko Academy of Music)<sup>42</sup>, for which a receipt has survived: the music score was bought in 1984 from Mrs Aniela Zabłocka, who lived in Gdańsk-Wrzeszcz<sup>43</sup>.

The catalogue

Research into the prints found provided an opportunity to revise their bibliographic descriptions. All the notes were catalogued in the NUKAT Central Catalogue and in the local catalogue of the aMuz Library – Prolib. First of all, it was necessary to establish the dating of most of the publications, which in many cases was the result of several parameters: the dates of the composer's life and the year of composition, the period of the publisher and/or printer activity, and the provenance marks left behind. The only certainty was the date of Jüncke's death, 1897, indicating that no print with his stamp or signature could have been published later.

The table below (see Table 1) presents the catalogue of the prints found that allows an orientation of the contents. It includes information on how the dates or date ranges of the editions enclosed in square brackets were determined and other findings that are important in my opinion. The concordances made have shown that the music scores preserved in the collection are not particularly rare

Conclusions

The search for music scores in the holdings of the aMuz Library in order to reconstruct the catalogue on the basis of the former call number A unexpectedly shed light on new facts regarding the knowledge of the life and activities of the Danzig-Sopot merchant F.W. Jüncke, who, as it turned out, also collected music documents in addition to numismatics and Danzig doors. Due to the small number of other provenance marks and lost receipt records, in many cases it is impossible to reconstruct the full path of these prints from publisher to library shelves. There is also uncertainty about the function of music scores in Jüncke's collection, i.e. it is not known whether he acquired them purely for collecting purposes or whether they were used in concerts as part of bourgeois social gatherings. However, undoubtedly, due to the former call number and register numbers from 1943 found in the five copies, their discovery is not only a contribution to supplement Jüncke's biographical data, but also a further step in the research into the fate of the musical culture of Gdańsk, especially in the years 1939–1945.

58 Dating based on the publisher's mark 276, see C.F. Meser, [in:] IMSLP, [online] https://imslp.org/wiki/C.F.\_Meser [accessed 28.06.2023]. The earlier dating given by European libraries is incorrect, as publisher's marks 274 and 275 by C.F. Meser are also date to 1844, see Der fliegende Holländer, WWV 63 (Wagner, Richard), [in:] IMSLP, [online] https://imslp.org/wiki/Der\_fliegende\_Holl%C3%A4nder%2C\_WWV\_63\_\(Wagner%2C\_Richard\)) [accessed 28.06.2023]. The publisher was the first to publish such operas by R. Wagner as Rienzi, Der fliegende Holländer, or Tannhäuser.
